Dominican Republic Med Mission Trip

"Only three of the teen orphan girls you will treat in the clinic tomorrow have not been abused." What do you do or say when you hear that?

Last month, God used you to offer a ray of hope to orphans, deliver medical and spiritual care to underserved communities, and give local churches with whom we worked increased standing and connection with the unchurched in their communities.

Dominican MD explains healing Jesus can bring.

The night before running medical clinics at the orphanage, God provided something to share with these hurting girls. A student on our team (not pictured in this letter) talked about an attack she endured in college. Her school was of little help and her perpetrator remains unpunished. Yet God met her in a profound way, facilitated significant healing, and sustained her sense of worth. As we drove to the orphanage, Bob asked if she would be comfortable telling her story to these girls. "Absolutely yes!", she replied.

When our clinic concluded, she shared how God restored her after that tragic assault. Tears were shed. Yet, this story of hope anchored in the Gospel offered a road to healing. Many of the young orphan girls wanted to talk more afterwards.

Join us in praying for these girls. Lift up the pastors and churches as they pursue relationships with those who benefited from the clinics. And pray that we would all be effective ambassadors for Jesus both abroad and at home.
