Medical and Dental Ministry

September 2016

Dear Friends,

"I've never lead a Bible study before," remarked Nathan, a medical student. Though he had attended one of America's premier Christian universities, he felt ill-equipped to lead spiritually.

Yet over Labor Day Weekend, he had decided to change that. As one of the new student leaders for his CMDA group, Nathan was eager to learn how he could help others at his school grow in their understanding and experience with Jesus.

Nathan, along with other Christian student leaders from several California schools, joined us in the mountains for some practical training in how they could be more effective at reaching their classmates for Christ. We covered everything from connecting with new students arriving on campus to leading a small group to sharing the Gospel with friends and patients. But most importantly, we spent time in prayer uplifting specific requests for each campus represented.

Please pray for these students and faculty sponsors. The majority of healthcare students do not know Christ. You have helped Nathan, along with these others pictured, to become more effective at being "salt and light" among their classmates. Thank you!
