The Gospel and Technology

"I'd love to see that app!", exclaimed the young hospitalized patient. And over the next few moments, Jordan, first year medical student in Southern California, was able to use his phone to effectively explain how she might connect with God through the person of Jesus Christ.

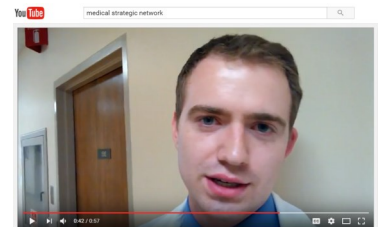

Since he arrived at medical school, Jordan has regularly attended our weekly Spiritual Care Practicum. He is becoming more skilled in determining the spiritual needs of patients and being able to provide a core level spiritual care.

A few weeks ago, we introduce the students to a practical and useful phone/tablet app called God Tools. A free download, it has proven to be a useful and culturally relevant tool to use in sharing the Gospel via popular publications such as Would You Like to Know God Personally and The Four Spiritual Laws in a number of languages .

Once their conversation was over, this patient was thrilled to learn that she could download God Tools to her own phone for continued study. In addition to the Gospel, she'll find helpful articles about God's existence, life questions, sex and relationships, and Jesus—all written from a biblical perspective.

We have found people are often willing and comfortable reading through this app with us. Is God Tools on your phone and tablet? If not, consider a complimentary download today. You never know when you might get to share it with a friend who does not yet know Jesus.

My First Practicum!*

During this Thanksgiving season, we are most grateful for you—your friendship, your prayers, and your investments in students like Jordan and patients like this young adult. May God bless you!
