

Partnerships

Walk on any undergrad campus in the country and you'll find huge numbers of pre-med students driven by their goal of becoming a physician. Many of these students do not know Jesus.

Recently we showed such students how Christ could make a difference in their lives. We partnered with our Cru undergrad ministry and several secular student organizations at the University of California Riverside to host the program "How I Got to Med School: 4 Doctors Tell Their Stories."

We provided the panelists—all Christians and three of whom are Preceptorship alums. They shared their strategies of making it to med school and how biblical faith sustained them in their pursuits.

As students listened intently to the practical suggestions, they heard how Christ can affect the journey.

The UCR Cru group will build on the connections this event fostered with the students and other organizations.

In a few weeks, we'll welcome students from across the U.S. to the 18th annual Whole Person Care Preceptorship. Later in July, we'll add another 34 pre-med/pre-pro students to the mix. The Preceptorship students will then teach the Pre-Pro students what they have learned.

These next few weeks are among the most impactful and demanding of the year. We'd be grateful for your prayers!

Thank you for helping us show secular students the relevancy of faith in their lives. And thank you for building a new generation of Christian healthcare professionals.
