CCHF!

Christian Community Health Fellowship (CCHF) is a growing national association comprised of Christian healthcare professionals who are committed to living out the gospel through healthcare among the poor.

Each year, thousands of underserved adults and children from Staten Island, New York to rural Mississippi to Skid Row in Los Angeles receive healthcare in the name of Jesus. This care comes from clinics and individuals who are part of the CCHF community. Many serve in private Christian clinics. Others are in Federally Qualified Health Centers.

For the past several years, Bob has been invited to speak at the annual CCHF National Conference. This year he was asked to do sessions on taking a spiritual history and the ethical basis for providing whole person care. After one of his presentations, he met Chet, a Clinical Services Manager at a midwestern Christian clinic that provides care to those who are unable to afford private health insurance yet not qualify for public insurance.

Chet said, “Last year after hearing your talk on taking a spiritual history, I implemented the things I learned and now all of our physicians are taking spiritual histories at our clinic. Many have been able to care for the spiritual needs of our patients.”

Following the conference, CCHF received an email from Frederick, a conferee who had attended Bob’s session. “These were ... powerful and impactful workshops that I can’t stop talking about. I want to share the information with several healthcare workers and ministry members in our church.” Frederick asked how he could contact Bob for his presentation slides.

Might you join us in praying for Frederick, Chet, and the CCHF community as they give medical care and share message of the risen Savior with those facing economic and social challenges? From Staten Island to Skid Row, you are making a difference. Thank you!
