

New Beginnings

Though the thermometer suggests otherwise, for many “summer” is over. Students are returning to campus. Residencies are seeing their new “physicians in training” begin caring for patients. And recent healthcare graduates are starting new jobs and careers.

For us, we’re busy connecting with the new first year medical students who arrived two weeks ago. We’ve done presentations in class, hosted a welcome dinner at the home of the assistant dean, and began weekly spiritual care practicums. We’ll be launching lunch Bible studies. Soon we’ll travel to other health science campuses to do our classic presentation “Taking a Spiritual History: Good Medicine for Patient and Professional?”

In July we did 10 hours of spiritual care training with the new Family Medicine interns. This week Bob begins weekly patient rounds to coach them in becoming more competent in caring for the spiritual needs of their patients.

In 2018 at our Whole Person Care Preceptorship, Jason, a med student from California, met Donata, a nursing student from Boston. They grew in their relationship, asked Bob to provide their pre-marital counseling and officiate their June ‘21 wedding. Talk about new beginnings!

Jason began his ophthalmology residency and Donata started working as a pediatric oncological nurse in Loma Linda, CA. Both seek to live out their faith with their patients.

Incidentally, there are at least 7 couples like these two who met at the preceptorship, are now married and are building families as they live for the king.
