Strengthening Marriages

God designed marriage to be fulfilling and to be instrumental in helping husbands and wives conform more to the image of Christ. But having a good marriage is a challenge to couples everywhere—including those in healthcare.

Recently God laid it on Diana's heart for us to begin a Christian marriage group. We invited several healthcare couples to join us in this new ministry outreach. Some are still in medical school. Others are in residency. One couple is now working as attending physicians.

We gather monthly for a meal, discussion/teaching time on establishing biblical patterns of interaction and conflict resolution. Then we allow time for each couple to be alone together to interact and practice the principles we've discussed. We come back together for a few minutes to share, encourage one another and pray for each other.

We'd be grateful if you might pray for us and for the couples in this group. Like many others, these healthcare couples must navigate long work/study hours, high job standards/expectations and large education debt. Some have recently welcomed babies into their family. Strong Christian marriages bring glory to God and serve as a foundation from which to make lasting impact for God's kingdom.
