“I want to finish well.”

“Bob, you’ll soon be getting a call from Ken Orduna, PhD.” That’s what Steve Noblett, the then CEO of Christian Community Health Fellowship, an organization comprised of clinics and individuals serving in underserved settings nationwide, told Bob over two years ago.

A few days later, Ken called. “Steve told me that you were the first person I should call. Can we meet soon?” Ken’s the CEO of a large inner-city clinic system in Los Angeles. His background is incredible. He’s been the Chief of Staff for a US Congressman. And he was a member of a US Naval unit that was the predecessor to the elite Navy Seals.

Bob invited Ken to attend our Whole Person Care Preceptorship teaching session, “The Ethical Basis for Spiritual Care in Healthcare.” Over lunch afterwards, Ken exclaimed, “I was blown away by that talk.” He went on to share that he was in the process of seeing his clinics become Christian faith based. “I want to finish well. My board is behind me. I need help seeing this happen.”

A few weeks later Ken invited Bob to speak to his physicians and clinicians. After that Ken requested a proposal to provide more extensive training to the providers, clinic managers and behavioral health professionals at each of their clinics. Since then we’ve completed training at 6 clinics — each over an 8 week period. More, Bob’s been asked to twice monthly provide a full day of training for the new hires for the entire Central Neighborhood Christian Health Clinics system.

Since this shift to a Christian based system is new, some of the participants have yet to come to faith in Christ. Still, that creates strategic opportunities for the Gospel to go forth. Response has been consistently positive:

“I have been praying that I could learn how to do this.”

“I’ve been working on reintroducing myself to faith that I’ve neglected for a long time. I appreciate your guidance on how to get there.”

Upon hearing how Christ offers a door out of spiritual brokenness, a Muslim physician exclaimed, “Everyone needs to hear about the door!”

Each day we’re grateful for the honor of partnering with you and seeing God bless and multiply your gifts. This clinic system serves 40,000 patients in LA and beyond. Please pray that God would use all this to see many come to faith in Jesus.
